Let's Start!

Amsterdam is a great place to relax!

Learning Outcome:

Accurately use information about travel and vacations in social situations.

Can Do Statements:

- I can report about things, actions, events, or people.
- I can respond to offers and requests.
- I can give and respond to suggestions.

Ask your partner:

- Where do you go to relax?
- How often do you get time to go there?
- How do you relax?

Let's Explore!

Sally gets a surprise* phone call.

*A "surprise" is something unexpected.

Instructions: Read the dialogue aloud.

Sally: Peter! I am surprised you called again so soon. Amsterdam is great!

Peter: Tell me all about it!

Sally: I'd love to! I went to the Van Gogh museum. I spent a day at a spa. I took a canal boat tour.

Peter: Can I ask you something?

Sally: Sure. Ask me anything.

Peter: I need some advice. I'm taking out this girl.

Sally: I can help with that.

Peter: I'm a bit nervous. I want to make a good impression. Where should I take her?

Sally: How about going to a movie?

Peter: Yes, we could do that.

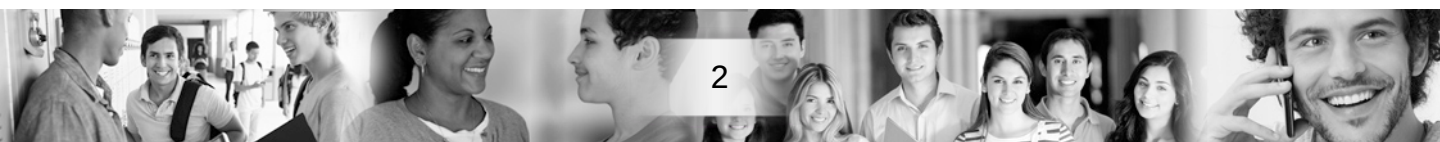

Sally: You can always go for dinner.

Peter: That sounds good.

Sally: Go to our favorite haunt - Pizzario's!

Peter: You're right. That's a good idea. Thanks for the help.

Sally: Anytime at all!

Let's Practice!

Excuse me? Can you help Sally and Peter?

Instructions: Read the dialogue again and select all the correct answers.

Which are responses to offers or requests?

- ☐ I'd love to!

Learning Points

Responding to Offers and Requests

You use different responses to offers and requests. For offers and requests, you also may use the imperative form.

You use can and could when you are responding to an offer or you are making a request.

Offer or Request	Response
How can I help?	I need some advice.
Tell me all about it!	I'd love to! Anytime at all!
Can I ask you something?	Sure. Ask me anything!
